The Patrin Web Journal

Probably the most extensive source of Roma-related materials on the Web, this is an excellent starting point for anyone seeking information on the Rom. Highly recommended.

The Gypsy Lore Society

The home page of the Gypsy Lore Society, sponsors of the oldest (I think) journal dedicated to the study of the Roma. Unfortunately, the Journal of the GLS is not yet online.

The International Romani Union

<http://www.unionromani.org/>

The European Roma Rights Centre

A Hungary-based organisation dedicated to protecting the rights of Europe's Roma. Considerable information about anti-Roma human rights violations in eastern Europe.

University of Liverpool

The University has a large collection of Romani-related material, some of which is on the Web, with the promise of more to come. Look out for an interesting article on gypsy caravans.

George Borrow

George Borrow was a nineteenth century writer who wrote a number of books on the Romani in Britain and Spain, becoming fluent in Romani and living with Roma for extended periods. I believe that the University of Liverpool's gypsy library started with Borrow's collection (correct me if I'm wrong anyone). The full texts of a number of his books are available for download courtesy of the Gutenberg Project.
